Further heavy rain and thunderstorms leading to a chance of flooding and disruption on Sunday afternoon and night

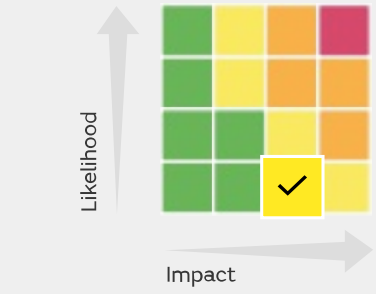
What to expect

- Spray and sudden flooding could lead to difficult driving conditions and some road closures
- There is a small chance that homes and businesses could be flooded quickly, with damage to some buildings from floodwater, lightning strikes, hail or strong winds
- Where flooding or lightning strikes occur, there is a chance of delays and some cancellations to train and bus services
- There is a slight chance that power cuts could occur and other services to some homes and businesses could be lost

Further details

Earlier thundery rain is now in the process of clearing northeastwards, but following a brief brighter interlude (albeit with scattered heavy showers and isolated thunderstorms), further heavy rain and thunderstorms are expected to spread northwards later this afternoon and evening, particularly across southern and then eastern parts of England, easing through the early hours of Monday morning.

A few locations could see 20-30 mm falling within an hour and as much as 40 to 60 mm in 2-3 hours. Frequent lightning, squally winds and hail are also possible, these thundery hazards probably focused across southeastern parts of England.



Very low likelihood of medium impacts
